After parading to the West Side they countermarched and walked to Union square, where they were addressed by Albert Boardman and several others After the speeches the paraders wen back to the hall and dispersed to their homes. Officers Bray and Casey es-corted the paraders as far as Preston, bridge, where two other policemen formed into line and escorted them through the city. There were in all about 200 in line, including 10 or 15 children, 50 women and the remainder men. The two leaders bore a large banner, and another prominent striker bore a large: American flag. It was intended that the marchers should have been led by a band, but it was impossible to secure one because of the short notice given the band leaders. There was not the slightest trouble during the parade, the men walking along in an orderly and gentlemanly manner. In the evening another meeting was held in the hall and aldresses were given in both the English

Mr. Boisse, the driver, had just been up to the company's gravel bank to get a load and was about to cross the trolley tracks when the accident happened. The road leading to the gravel bank is quite steep at this point and the tracks lie close to the side of the highway. Mr. Boisse heard the trolley express go by several minutes before he reached the road and, supposing that the way was clear, he started to drive his horses over the tracks. The team had just reached the middle of the tracks and was half facing to the northward when the trolley appeared around the corner, traveling at a moderate rate of speed. It was too late to get the team clear of the tracks, and the motorman was unable to stop his car, although he shut off the power and reversed that motors. The oncomino car struck the near horse and, tearing it from the harness, practically disemboweled it. The other horse was also struck and

Palmer said that he be leved that the stockholders and direc-ors appreciated the constant effort and energy which President Cary put into the work during the past year and suggested a vote of thanks to the president, secretary and treasurer, which was given. At the request of Presi-dent Cary, Mr. Palmer showed a blue print of the land owned by the company, explaining the location and lay-out. He said that there were 114 de-sirable building lots in the section which it is proposed to develop first. These lots are about 50x100 in size. It was explained that the original plan o' allotting a building lot to each of the subscribers to the Thermos fund had been abandoned, the subscribers with one exception agreeing to accept stock in the Norwich Industrial Im-provement corporation instead. Willam B. Young moved that the direc-tors be authorized to sell these build-ing lots to the best advantage possible and it was so voted.

As there are practically ne operating expenses of the corporation, said President Cary, the money received from the sale of these lots will ge to the steckholders, and eventually a coniderable revenue is anticipated from s source. There is special beauty in the thought of Christ's resurrection when we say good-bye to one who has lived so long, Mr. Northrop said. Those who have entered into the life of God here for over seventy years are saints with power to be developed into perfect sainthood. She was endowed with sainthood. She was endowed with sainthess in the home; God made her so. We can almost follow her into the newer and better life, the soul making for itself a new habitation.

Under the brightness of an Easter morning God has taken her to Himself. He has let her live long to be a blessing in and beyond her home. The best comfort to those dearest to her is that the progress through this life has dense world.
